

Medical Personnel Injuries

Peer Editing Response

Essay Title: Author: Speir Reviewer's Name: Josh Manchester

MACRO Organization: Intro > Clear Purpose > Data > Analysis > Conclusion > Call to Action

1. Evaluate the essay's title, header, pagination, margins, and other technical matter: Good
2. What appears to be the essay's main argument-focus of the analysis? Underline the thesis. Restate the thesis/purpose statement in your words. Can't find a direct stated thesis. Probably something along the lines of how to prevent injuries to medical personnel
3. Evaluate the connections and transitions throughout the essay (the essay's focus): personnel
4. Mark and evaluate the following kinds of evidence: quote, fact, statistic, anecdote, emotional appeal, logical appeal, ethical appeal:
5. Is the evidence integrated properly in-text—is the punctuation correct, are the quotes introduced with varied signal phrases/verbs, are they placed within a satisfactory context? Is the APA use appropriate? Yes but not so much
6. Evaluate the essay's concessions/rebuttals:
7. Evaluate the style (readability, grammar, syntax):

Sentence level:

- ☐ Eliminate passives ("to be" verb constructions) — A few passive statements
- ☐ Eliminate wordiness, complex confusing sentences — A few places
- ☐ Combine short choppy sentences ✓
- ☐ Word choice — avoid sexist, stereotyping language ✓
- ☐ Tone—professional and academic—no slang! ✓ no jargon as I can find
- ☐ Mechanics: spelling, punctuation, grammar and usage. — Mostly OK

8. Evaluate the References page: do they match the in text? Are they done correctly? Alphabetical order! some do not match
9. Comment on the strengths of the essay: Shelby knows this because she has lived it and it is evident in her writing
10. Comment on the weaknesses of the essay and make suggestions for improvement:

I can see that this really upsets her and it comes through in the writing. If Shelby could take herself out of the writing it should be better. The problem is she has lived this so that would be hard to do.